Singapore & Bintan – Best of both worlds

As you would expect from a nation as keen on golf as Singapore, there are plenty of golf courses with more than thirty 18-hole layouts to choose from, although many of them are private clubs and not open to the public. The nearby island of Bintan is famous for its white-sand beaches, many recreational activities and, naturally, golf. There are three 18-hole courses and one club with 27 holes.

Vietnam – Discovery

In 2009, the International Association of Golf Travel Operators (IAGTO) nominated Vietnam as the 'Undiscovered Golf Destination of the Year. The accolade is well deserved as the country now offers a fantastic choice of courses designed by some of the most famous names in the game. In future years, Vietnam will be providing stiff competition for Thailand when it comes to golf tours in the Far East.

China - Paradise Found in Yunnan

Many people believe that Yunnan is the Shangri-La imagined by James Milton in his famous book, 'Paradise Lost'. It is one of the most ethnically distinct regions of China featuring ancient houses, beautiful Chinese temples and pagodas set against a backdrop of magical snow tipped mountains and towering rice terraces.

The golf courses in Yunnan are equally diverse and spectacular. The Jack Nicklaus designed Mountain course at Spring City Golf & Lake Resort is amongst the best in China and appears on the top 500 list in Golf Digest. Ancient Town Lakefront Golf Club offers spectacular views over the surrounding countryside. Jade Dragon Snow Mountain (see picture) is more than 3,000 meters above sea level and an unbelievable 8,548 yards long and is still rated as a par 72. Fortunately, at this altitude your ball flies much further but not far enough to conquer this monster.
